

The Botanical Gazette.

EDITORS:

JOHN M. COULTER,

WABASH COLLEGE, CRAWFORDSVILLE, IND.

CHARLES R. BARNES,

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN, MADISON, WIS.

J. C. ARTHUR,

PURDUE UNIVERSITY, LAFAYETTE, IND.

August 18.1891.

My dear Dr. Watson:--

I was sorry to have to leave Cambridge without seeing you again, but as I had made all my arrangements on the supposition that you were to return on Monday I had no alternative. As both Miss Clark and Mr. Fernald were on hands I thought that the business of the herbarium would be better attended to probably than when in my charge. Going without seeing you, I was obliged to use my own discretion as to what books could be taken. I think that I have nothing that you are likely to need. The list of those that I took is in Miss Clark's hands.

My boxes of papers, books, etc. which I sent by freight came last week and were unpacked; yesterday I resumed work, beginning upon the Leguminosae.

My wife is already considerably improved by reason of the change. She sleeps and eats much better than in her desolation at the Sanitarium. She stood the journey well---much better than I anticipated and I hope that she will steadily gain in strength.

Your "Contributions XVIII" came yesterday; for which, thanks.

Very cordially yours,

CR Barnes

August 18, 1891.

My dear Dr. Watson:--

I was sorry to have to leave Cambridge without seeing you again, but as I had made all my arrangements on the supposition that you were to return on Monday I had no alternative. As both Clark and Mr. Fernald were on hand I thought that the nature of the lecture would be better attended to properly than when in my absence. Gaining without seeing you, I was obliged to use my own discretion as to what books could be taken. I think that I have nothing to be sorry about likely to need. The list of those that I took is in this list.

My boxes of papers, books, etc. with me I sent by freight case last week and were unpacked; yesterday I resumed work, returning upon the terminus.

My wife is already considerably improved by reason of the change. She sleeps and eats much better than in her desolation at the terminus. She stood the journey well---much better than I anticipated and I hope that she will steadily gain in strength.

Your "Contributions XVII" came yesterday; for which, thanks.

Very cordially yours,

Aug 18, 1891